Child and Family Connection

The sooner we start, the farther we'll go

Child and Family Connection is a program of the Center for Child and Family Services, Inc.

What To Ask A Potential Provider

- Are your operating policies and information on your programs in writing so that I can review them?
- Is your center or home licensed for child care? If so, ask to see the license. Is the license current and does it indicate any special provisions?
- What are your fees and what is included in the fee structure? Are there any additional fees? Do fees continue during the sick days, holidays, or inclement weather days?
- Remember the presence of a license does not ensure quality care. Observation of children actively involved in programs is important in making an informed decision.

Do you have concerns about your child? There is help! Parenting isn't easy. Not everyone can have a "Super Nanny", but Child & Family Connection can help. With solid information on child development and positive parent-child relationships, CFC can help you become the parent you want to be. CFC works with families of young children ages 2-12.

COST FOR SERVICES

Childcare consultation is offered at minimal charge to families or childcare providers. For child/family therapy, the Connection accepts some health insurances and has a sliding fee scale. No one is turned away at CFC due to inability to pay for services. These services are funded in part by United Way of Greater Williamsburg, Williamsburg Community Health Foundation, Virginia Department of Social Services, and Kiwanis.
